Jack Zhang, P.Eng.

Jack Zhang is Senior Director at the Saskatchewan Research Council (SRC). Jack earned a Ph.D. in Chemical Engineering from the University of Saskatchewan and began a mining career as a metallurgist at Cameco in 2007. In 2011, Jack joined SRC to establish the mineral processing business.

With experience across engineering, operations, and R&D, Jack's expertise spans uranium, potash, phosphate, rare earth elements, lithium, and medical minerals, with a particular focus on the extraction and recycling of critical minerals. Jack has collaborated with more than 200 companies globally in the mining sector to develop and commercialize technologies and is the recipient of the 2025 CIM Medal for Meritorious Contributions to Mining.
